Donoghue v Stevenson (1932)

Mrs Donoghue went to a café in Paisley with her friend to discuss her upcoming wedding arrangements. The friend bought Donoghue a bottle of ginger beer made by Stevenson's drinks company. Donoghue drank some of the ginger beer not knowing that there was a dead snail inside the opaque bottle. When she saw the snail, she sued Stevenson for negligence claiming that she was entitled to compensation. Donoghue had been bought the drink by a friend and therefore, she could not make a claim under contract law.

Verdict: FOR THE CLAIMANT

The House of Lords held: Stevenson had been negligent and he owed a duty of care to Donoghue who was the ultimate consumer of their product.

Lord Atkin said:

'The rule that you are to love your neighbour becomes in law: You must not injure your neighbour, and the lawyers' question: Who is my neighbour? receives a restricted reply. You must take reasonable care to avoid acts or omissions which you can reasonably foresee would be likely to injure your neighbour. Who then, in law, is my neighbour? The answer seems to be persons who are so closely and directly affected by my act that I ought reasonably to have them in contemplation as being so affected when I am directing my mind to the acts or omissions which are called in question.'

R v Dudley & Stephens (1884)

Facts: Four sailors were sailing a yacht from Southampton to Australia to deliver it to its new owner. The yacht capsized and sank during a storm and the four man crew took to a small lifeboat. They had two tins of turnips but no water. They survived on the turnips and by eating a turtle they caught but after 15 days at sea Parker (the cabin boy) was ill from drinking sea water. The other three crew members discussed drawing lots to decide who should be sacrificed and eaten by the others according to the Customs of the Sea (shipwrecked sailors would do this if they were stranded days from land). One of the crew members (Brooks) refused to be involved so Dudley and Stephens killed the unconscious cabin boy, Parker. All three eat him and then were rescued by a passing boat after 24 days at sea.

When they reached Cornwall all three were arrested for murder. The charges were dropped against Brooks so he could give evidence for the prosecution. Dudley and Stephens argued that there was no case to answer due to the established Custom of the Sea. This was rejected and the Home Secretary and Attorney General decided to prosecute the defendants for murder. They argued that they had to kill Parker under the law of necessity.

Held: The defendants were found guilty of murder. The court was not convinced that it was necessary to kill Parker to save themselves. The defendants avoided the death penalty but were granted a pardon and sentenced to six years imprisonment.
